Why not take the time to try something new?

Lou Ann Stories

It is not important the time of life when you tired.

Important is that it's always possible and necessary to restart. Re-birthing is a new opportunity; it is renewing the holes in life; and more importantly it is believing in oneself.

Did you suffer greatly sometime?...that was a time for learning.

Did you cry a lot?...you were cleansing the soul.

Did you feel spiteful?...it was a lesson on forgiveness.

At times were you alone?...it was because you closed the door.

Were there times you believed everything was lost?...it was simply the beginning of your improvement.

Did you feel lonely?...look around you and you will see people waiting for your smile, just to get closer to you.

Re-birth. Today is an excellent day to start a new life project. Where do you want to go?

Look higher, dream higher, desire the best; life brings us what we aspire.

'It isn't that we dare because things are difficult, it is that we don't dare that they are difficult' (quote by Seneca translated by Maria Diaz).

I lost a childhood toy...but have the memory of the person who gave me that gift with unconditional love.

I lost the privileges and fantasies of childhood...but had the opportunity of growing and living free.

I lost a lot of people whom I loved and still love...but had the affection and now have model from their lives.

I lost moments of life because I cried instead of smiling but I discovered that it is from planting love that love is harvested.

I lost many things, many times in my life but in that "loss," today I aspire for the value of "gain,"...because it is always possible to fight for that which we love; and because there is always time to start all which we love; and because there is always time to start all over again.

If we think small; the small will come.

If we think firmly on the best, on the positive and we strive for it, the best will come in our lives.

Today is the great mental cleansing day. Throw away all that binds you to the past; all that hurts you.

Discard everything into garbage; clean your heart; prepare it for a new life, and a new love; for we are passionate. We are capable of loving many times, because we are the manifestation of love.

Life calls you; it invites you to a new adventure, a new challenge.

This day, promise yourself:

That you will do anything possible to achieve your objectives; trust in life, trust in yourself." Author unknown.

I found this message on January 4, 2010 likely on one of those million pictured Internet things that we all get here and there on Facebook. It struck me as being so profound that I scribbled it down on lime green scratch paper that was printed on already that I grabbed out of the trash cuz it was the closest thing I could find and didn't want to lose this message.

I came across it two weeks ago to share with the Pageant contestants but didn't get around to it. Possibly because I needed to share it with all of you wonderful people who are reading it now.

None of us are perfect but we can strive to be better people no matter what walk of life or profession or retirement we come.

I believe the words of the green pages that I scribbled nine years ago and kept this long. I live by them. I felt the great need to share them with you that you might find comfort in the words and thoughts or the emotions they evoke. Perhaps it is a call to action or a wake up call.

For me it was comforting and inspiring at the same time and I ran across it at the exact time I needed to. My soul needed to read those words.

I want to encourage all who read this that together we can get through tough times. We are never alone. Together we can also create joy and healing and the best of times. We are all vulnerable whether or not we want to admit it. It is our vulnerabilities that make us fully human and perfectly imperfect. When we can feel that vulnerability and give others the opportunity to reach out to us as we learn to accept their grace as they reach out, is the point where we grow more wonderfully, beautifully, brilliantly more human and therefore happier deep within our psyche that frees our spirit to be more receptive and honestly and truly joy filled.

I love you all dearly and hope that this means as much to you as it did to me nine plus years ago.
